Dear Phillip:

Water, the world's most valuable liquid, is crucial to the quality of life, economic development and survival of any community. It is with this in mind that the Antioch Chamber of Commerce board of directors recently voted to support the City of Antioch's position on its water rights and needs to be made whole if water quality is compromised by the state trying untested solutions for water movement and habitat issues or allowing multiple "low" impact projects to go forward.

Antioch's future should not be sacrificed by turning the fragile Delta into a laboratory to test hypotheses which have a doubtful place in science. Antioch should be included in any planning process for Delta water and should be compensated for any water degradation that occurs at the site of Antioch's water intake.

Sincerely,

Devi Lanphere
